Coming to Boca Raton, Futurism at the Beach

Sunny makeovers have been part of the mood magic of Boca Raton, Fla., since the self-taught architect Addison Mizner whipped the resort out of bare beach sand in the '20s. Now the Boca Raton Resort and Club is at it again. The glam éminence Andree Putman is overhauling the keystone of the 356-acre complex, the Beach Club, adding 40 new rooms, above and far right, a restaurant, top right, and 46 cabanas. Ms. Putman, who has put her stamp on hotels like Morgans in New York, will be styling the beach club with plank floors, blond furnishings and white leather. Call it the futuro-green look. Or, as she says, "a journey without moving." Construction begins this month, with the club scheduled to reopen in early 2008.
